The type of personal information we collect

We currently collect and process the following information:

- Name
- Email address
- Phone number (only if operationally needed)
- Address (only if operationally needed)
- Photographs

How we get the personal information and why we have it

Most of the personal information we process is provided to us directly by you, either verbally or by email or by what is currently available online. Photographs may be taken at work days and events. We hold this information in order to manage the operations of NWG.

What we use the information for

We use the information that you have given us in order to let you know about:

- NWG's activities
- forthcoming events including monthly meetings, Annual General Meeting, work days
- issues directly related to our mission to protect and improve the bio diversity of our community in line with our Terms of Reference – see www.wildnorley.com

We use photographs to publicise the work we are doing and to share information with the wider community.

Under the UK General Data Protection Regulation (UK GDPR), the lawful base we rely on for processing this information is:

Legitimate Interest: we use your data in ways that are necessary to run our Group; for example, to let you know about forthcoming events.

Consent: you may have given your consent by registering your interest on our web site, by completing an online questionnaire or through communication with us.
